DARING FEATS SEEN AT Y. M. C. A. CIRCUS

Clowns and Acrobats Amuse
Large Audience.

FREAKS AT SIDE SHOW, TOO

Roaring of "Barker" Gets Spectators' Money, Who Wanders Through Mazes of Side-splitting Exhibition.
"Panoramic Procession of World's Famed Talent" Attracts Crowd.

There was a circus, a real, modern, clown and acrobatic circus, with a side show appended, at the Y. M. C. A. last night, and so successful were the performances that they will be repeated to-morrow.

For the modest sacrifice of "two bits," which, translated into English, means 25 cents, a spectator might witness half-raising feats unequalled. It is said, by professionals in Georgetown, Anacostia, or Alexandria.

If by any accident the spectator had the price of a 10-cent cigar, he might also have wandered through the intricate mazes of a side-splitting side show, and also, if he had not succumbed to laughter in the side show, he might have purchased peanuts by the bag, ice cream by the cone, popcorn by the roll, and other edibles usually found on the menu of a modern, knock-about circus.

"Barker" Gets Money.

Entering through the main doors of the Y. M. C. A. Building, the spectator was reduced to abject terror by the roaring of a "barker," who took the spectators' money and pushed him in the side show. There sat Mrs. Clive, just like a human being, charming smile and looking pretty—pretty ugly. Mrs. Bon Amie, so the card read, dissolved in a tub of water while bathing in preparation for the show, and therefore could not be present. Mrs. Bon Amie, they said, was the Parisian heart-breaker.

Bridget Malone, recently imported from a Massachusetts avenue kitchen, was also present, but why no one seemed to know. Mithra, the Persian princess, who had just arrived by special airship, appeared for one engagement and occupied a throne against the wall. Some one said her family tree had taken root in antiquity.

Dame Darnasok, colonial belle, had painted on her face when she arrived, but most of it had run on her dress when she left. Queen Menelik, nee Anjemina Johnson Jones, blushed until she was blacker than coal, flitted with everybody and enjoyed life. A "barker" said she was the largest piece of dark meat ever served to a sensation-loving public. She weighed 723 pounds at the beginning of the show and was still growing when it closed.

Just Chewed Gum.

Zallah, clad in pink gauze and gold spangles, created thrills, and did nothing else except chew gum. There was a card pinned near the bottom of her booth which read, "since the arrival of Zallah, the Egyptian beauty, there has been no Mary Garden, Genet, or Ruth St. Denis." Every one expected Zallah to indulge in a little exhibition of the terpsichorean art, but she was a man in disguise and felt bashful.

When the side show closed its doors at 8 o'clock, or thereabouts, its audience moved to the "big show" in the gymnasium. Here were gathered fathers and mothers, sisters and brothers, and a fair assortment of friends, who applauded the grand parade of acrobats, tumblers, aerial swimmers, high-divers, horizontal bar performers, and the like, until sore palm refused to applaud.

Ringmaster C. A. Watson announced the acts in deep bass which was not his own and snapped a whip at imaginary horses in high glee. After the overture, the "grand introductory pageant," otherwise known as "a panoramic procession of the world's famed talent," wended its way about the gymnasium in tennis shoes and bowed to the storm of applause.

The horizontal bar "stunt" was performed by the crack gymnastic team composed of Messrs. Sigel, Young, Hansen, Long, Nesmith, Nelson, and Zorio, causing "intense excitement by aerial surprises." Clowns who filled the ring with their antics and the spectators with merriment were Messrs. Wood, Peaslee, Strausbaugh, Owen, and Young. They were a droll set, those comedians and burlesquers.

Escaped from Chains.

Marvel Smith, who is really marvelous, escaped from chains and padlocks and bags in a way that was "mystic, marvelous, and miraculous." A fancy stick drill was performed by a quartet of jolly trunks in simple life known as Messrs. Beckett, Long, Tenny, and Hansen.

The "great aerial performers," who "improved on Hall's comet," were Messrs. Nelson, Zorio, Ellason, Ott, Fortier, and Leonard.

Tumbling acts, which were featured as "the best porturing numbers of acrobatic stars," was performed by Messrs. Nelson, Zorio, McPhillomy, Ott, Hansen, Nesmith, Holyoke, and Ansley. Messrs. Young, Bookey, Sigel, Long, and Hansen, "premier artists of the dual bars," performed hair-raising tricks on the parallel bars, real nunchucks.

Pyramids, which rivaled those of ancient Egypt, were formed by Messrs. Holyoke, Faustman, Rouse, Blundell, Finucane, Nesmith, Osborne, Tenny, Young, Warring, Ansley, Haugen, Mansfield, Rudolph, Long, Morgan, Roberts, and Cash.
